

1. Name and describe two of the eight elements of thought.

What is an example of egocentric thinking?

Why are universal intellectual standards important?

What are the three types of questions?

What type of question supplies a correct answer?

No system

Multi-system

One system

All of the above

What type of question supplies a subjective opinion?

One system

No system

Multi-system

All of the above

What type of question requires evidence and reasoning with several systems?

Multi-system

No system

One system

All of the above

Name two problem-solving skills necessary for critical thinking?

9. Why is it important to continuously monitor your solutions when problem-solving?

Which is not a tip for analyzing research?

Determine the purpose or goal of the research

Do not look specifically for the point of view of the research

Study the methodology and determine if relevant data was obtained

Try to pull out the research question that is being posed